Congress Passes Conscription Measure

PROVISION ON INDUSTRY HAS TEETH PUT IN

Congress Meets Hour Early To Speed Final Action On Conscription.

AGE LIMIT DEBATED

Leaders Predict 21-35 Will Not Be Changed, Nor Delay Permitted.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Peacetime draft legislation, requiring registration of approximately 16,500,000 men 21 through 36 for military training, was finally approved by congress today and dispatched to the White House.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Enactment of the nation's first peacetime draft bill became but a matter of hours today after a vehemently arguing senate voted 37 to 33 late last night to give the government power to take over industrial plants when necessary to get defense orders filled.

Both the house and senate agreed to meet at 11 a. m., an hour earlier than usual and leaders said that before the day was over the measure calling for registration of all male citizens 21 through 35 would be ready for President Roosevelt's signature.

With debate over the industrial issue ended in victory for proponents of a provision with "teeth" in it, the senate still had at least two other controversies on tap but there was no indication that they would arouse similar prolonged and heated discussion. They revolved around the age range of men to be registered and the house proposal to delay the draft 60 days and try out a voluntary enlistment system.

Confidently, leaders predicted that despite outcroppings of opposition the age span provided would remain unchanged and the delay proposal would not be restored to the bill from which it was removed earlier this week by a senate-house conference committee.

Once the senate had finished with the measure it was slated to go to the house where Rep. Cooper of Tennessee, acting Democratic leader, had obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The 600-word section which the conference committee accepted on senate instructions and which

High School Band Members Stage Fund Drive Today.

Mansfield Senior high school's band turned out in full force this morning as the "Tag Day" campaign for funds to buy new band uniforms got under way in the city.

The committee in charge of the drive announced that the campaign would continue throughout the day and early evening, with headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. club rooms.

Members of the band sell the tags for any amount donors wish to give. They will be on the street corners and in stores throughout the day, the committee said.

Band members and mothers who have children in the band are sponsoring the drive. The present uniforms are nine years old.

PROTECT SAFE

Church Wardens Leave It Open For Robber Convenience.

TOPEKA, Kas.—(AP)—When prowlers entered the First Methodist church they found the safe door wide open.

"We've had so many burglaries," an official explained, "that we leave the safe open."

"Of course, there was no money."

CHIROS INDICTED

SANDUSKY—(AP)—Three Sandusky chiropractors, B. V. Morrow, T. M. Quilter and Gurney Schillig, were indicted by the Erie county grand jury yesterday on charges of practicing without a license.

Says Nazis Failed to Land

NEW YORK—(AP)—Dr. Charles F. Bove, 52-year-old American surgeon just returned from 25 years residence in Paris, says several unsuccessful attempts have been made to land German armed forces on Britain's shores.

(In London a military source told the Associated Press that "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form" had been made by Nazi forces.)

Arriving yesterday from Lisbon, Portugal, aboard the American export liner Excambion, Dr. Bove declared "the Germans have tried the invasion several times at different points and each time they failed."

List of Known Dead Stands At 48 In New Jersey Plant Disaster.

(By United Press)

KENVIL, N. J.—Federal bureau of investigation agents hunted today for Nazi sympathizers among the surviving employes of the Hercules powder plant, scene of an explosion that killed at least 48 workmen.

Sheriff Denton Quick of adjoining Sussex county turned over to FBI men a list of the licenses of automobiles seen going into the German-American Bund's Camp Nordland, 15 miles from here, in the past four months.

Quick had circulated the list among other sheriffs of the New Jersey arsenal belt early this week, asking that they investigate whether the owners of any of the cars were associated with un-American groups or were employed in any defense industries. He said a hurried check-up had revealed that about 40 men on his list belonged to un-American groups and that "we already have succeeded in eliminating them from jobs in defense industries."

W. C. Hunt, operations manager of the Hercules plant, said he could not recall discharging any of his employes for belonging to the Bund recently, and that "we have no reason to suspect anything of that kind." Quick, however, said, "I feel in my heart that the blast was set off by some Bundist."

None of the federal, state or industrial investigators at the scene had disclosed any evidence indicating sabotage, but Reps. J. Parnell Thomas and Frank Os-

Street Festival Postponed Week; Program All Set

Mansfield's first street festival, postponed a week from a previous date, will be held on Fourth street Sept. 25, 26, 27, and 28, the Fourth Street Merchants' Festival committee had announced today.

For four days and nights Mansfield's "ghost street" will be transformed into a carnival ground from Diamond street west to Mulberry street.

Concessions and rides will fill the new street and there will be free acts high in the air between the buildings and dancing in the street. There will be entertainment every afternoon and evening.

The street fair will serve as a dedication of the new paving on Fourth street which has been closed most of the summer. The street will be closed to traffic during the festival, but main intersections will be open to avoid traffic tie-ups.

Arrangements for the festival are in charge of the Fourth Steet Merchants Festival committee. Chairmen in charge of the affair include George Satterlee and E. S. Herrick in the Mulberry-Walnut street block, Vaughn Bates and E. M. Rogers in the Walnut-Main block, and William McAninch and Eugene Spain in the Main-Diamond block.

Proceeds of the festival will go for new uniforms for the high school band, it was announced today.

Cheer Tygers To Victory Under Lights

3,200 See Dedication of Stadium Lighting System

Colorful Crowd Cheers as Tygers Win Over Akron 14-13; High School Band, Drum Corps Parade.

An excited, colorful crowd of 3,200 gridiron fans were on hand last night to usher in King Football and witness the dedication ceremonies for the newly-installed lighting system at Stadium field.

Even the biting chill of mid-autumn wind which swept across the field couldn't freeze out the enthusiasm of the cheering spectators as they watched Mansfield win over the highly-touted Akron West Cowboys, 14 to 13.

Brief speeches of presentation and acceptance by school officials and prominent citizens and music by the Senior high school band and the American Legion Drum and Bugle corps highlighted the dedication services before the game.

Superintendent of School W. A. Miller started the dedication ceremonies with a talk thanking Mansfield citizens and business firms

NAZI WARNING GIVES BRITISH FINAL CHOICE

'Surrender or Destruction' Ultimatum Laid Down By Berlin Government.

'RUTHLESS ATTACKS'

Germans Say Weather Helps Defense of Capital, Hinders Offense.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Nazis today warned Britain to choose between surrender or destruction as German planes resumed attacks on England, including raids on the London area.

"London now must choose between the fates of Warsaw and Paris," well informed German quarters said.

"London now has a chance to save itself from war's destiny." The German air force will ruthlessly continue its attacks. London's 5,000 dead thus far will not be the last.

"The German attacks witness the conscienceless ness of Churchill and the British government in a war they cannot win and for which they never were morally or military prepared. The mass evacuation of London ordered by this government constitutes simple murder. People are rushing from the frying pan into the fire and are facing hunger and cold in the industrialized area surrounding the capital.

"That there have been no British raids on Berlin during the past two nights does not mean

TRAFFIC MOVES OVER FOURTH ST.

Block Between Diamond And Main Open; Second Section To Be Opened Later.

Motorists were driving over a section of the new brick pavement on Fourth street today.

It was the first time in 10 weeks that traffic was allowed over the thoroughfare which has been closed for re-construction.

Work on the brick finished yesterday afternoon, the section between Diamond and Main streets was opened to traffic this morning, while the block between Main and Walnut was to be completed shortly after noon and opened to traffic.

The reopening of the North Walnut street intersection marked the first time that all intersections in the downtown district were open to traffic.

At various intervals during the construction Walnut, Main and Mulberry streets have been closed.

State highway officials said, that the North Mulberry street intersection would probably be shut off again Monday while workmen put down brick.

Laying of brick has been completed to the intersection and it is expected, they said, that the entire three-block section will be finished by the middle of next week.

ELECTROCUTED

Britain's Coast Defense Tested By Nazi Fliers

Misty Weather Conditions Off Dover Acts Against Attack From Sea; Raids Over England Kept Up By Germans.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—German warplanes again dropped bombs on London a few minutes after the third air raid alarm of the day sounded in the British capital at 3:45 p. m.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The next 48 hours "is a period of intense danger of invasion to Britain," neutral military sources said today.

This statement came as German raiders tested the defenses of England's southeast coast following the eighth consecutive night of destructive raids on London.

Weather conditions off Dover, nearest point to German-held France across the channel, were described, however, as slightly less favorable for sea-borne invasion than for some time.

A stiff southwest breeze ruffled the channel surface and mist formed over the distant outline of the French coast.

Air raid warnings sounded twice for brief intervals in London and there were sporadic forays by German planes on northeast coast towns, but only one bombing was reported in daylight today after a week of history's greatest aerial siege.

One German bomber appeared out of a cloud bank over a southeast coast town, dropped two bombs and vanished into the cloud. Other German planes were sighted in the same area.

Armed patrols of police and the home guard turned out at one southeast coast town last night and searched riverside wharves and railroad sidings following reports that six parachutes were seen descending in that direction. They failed to find any evidence to support the reports.

High flying bombers rained high explosive and incendiary bombs on the southeast and western areas of the capital last night despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

A time bomb, dropped in yesterday's attack on Buckingham palace, exploded in front of the great grey stone building today, demolishing a gatepost and a section of iron fencing.

The superintendent of the royal residence said bombs dropped on the palace itself and surroundings caused damage between $80,000 and $120,000.

The ministry of information announced that South Africa house, London headquarters of the Union of South Africa, and the historic law courts in the Strand were damaged in last night's raid. Additional damage was reported in Trafalgar Square, where South Africa house is located.

A number of new fires were started during the night, but the government announced they were extinguished quickly.

Although attacks on central

FRANCE FEARS FURTHER LOSS

Complete Occupation by Nazis Seems Likely, Travelers From Vichy Report.

(By Associated Press)

CHANCY, Switzerland—Defeated France, struggling to solve serious economic and political problems engendered by a disastrous war, fears that the Germans may take over the entire country within a few weeks, travelers returning from the unoccupied zone declared today.

Swiss leaders also were said to be concerned over the prospect of German control of the entire French-Swiss border, now the only link between Switzerland and the outside world free of Axis domination.

(At Vichy, the Petain government met last night to study the question of food substitutes. The French press began preparing the nation for severe restrictions as the full import of the $8,000,000 daily cost of maintaining the German army of occupation was brought home.)

The travelers asserted the Germans virtually had emptied the unoccupied zone of reserve stores of food and such merchandise as textiles and rubber.

Although Frenchmen still feel that Britain let them down in the battle of northern France, the travelers said, the feeling is growing in France that only a British victory will assure France's future national existence.

FALL PREVIEW TO CONTINUE

Weatherman Predicts Cooler Weather For Sunday.

Autumn's preview in the Richland county area will extend through the week-end, the weatherman predicted today predicting cooler temperatures for Sunday.

The forecast said it would be fair tonight and Sunday with somewhat cooler temperatures tonight and Sunday.

After dropping to 50 last night the mercury rose to 68 at noon today to equal yesterday's high. The average temperature during the past 24 hours was 59, nine degrees below normal.

OFFICER DIES

Commanded 134th Field Artillery of Ohio National Guard.

COLUMBUS (NS) Col. Roy D. Prushing 47, commanding officer of the 134th field artillery, Ohio National guard, was dead today after an illness of several months.

Prushing, who served as a captain during the World war, had been sales manager of the Jeffrey Manufacturing company for 25 years.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson will give a memorial address Monday at the Arlington cemetery grave of William Howard Taft, president and chief justice, in honor of Taft's birthday anniversary which falls on Sunday.

THREE INJURED

Mansfield, Perrysville Men In Auto Accidents.

Three men were in General hospital this morning with injuries received last night in two automobile accidents in the Richland county area.

Mitchell Hagans, 37, of 303½ North Mulberry, was taken to the hospital after running his car in a ditch on Route 30-N, four miles west of Mansfield late last night.

Highway patrolmen said today that Hagans apparently fell asleep and lost control of his automobile. Hagans suffered severe body cuts and bruises.

Also in the hospital with cuts and bruises were James Wells, 49, of Perrysville and Blake Smith, also of Perrysville, both of whom were riding in the truck.

Witnesses said that the truck, driven by Smith, apparently ran off the road while going down a hill on Route 39, three miles east of Millersburg.

FUND RULING

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, holding that city education boards must contribute to the state workmen's compensation fund, advised the state injection bureau that the boards could not carry their own workmen's compensation liability.

East Comes to West In Sunday News-Journal

WHILE attention of most American newspaper readers is gripped by the battle of two cities, Berlin and London, in Europe and the likely invasion of Britain, world shaping events are also forming in the Orient.

Besides bringing you fullest coverage of Europe's war, the Sunday News-Journal will present two local interviews with persons who have just come from the heart of the crisis in the East.

THEY WERE THERE, CHARLEY

A young Mansfield public school student who has just returned from a visit with relatives in China gives you a colorful, personal account of his observations in the land of his ancestors.

Visiting here from his plantation in the Philippines, an American who went to the islands in 1898 to help put down the insurrection and later became a permanent resident tells of conditions which make the Japanese eye the commonwealth with longing. He tells you, too, just what the situation is inside the Philippines.

SPOKEN WITH FLOWERS

Another feature brings you the inside story of penitent husbands, youthful lovers, anxious relatives and all the variety of persons who use flowers to speak for them. Several city florists have known the story for a long time. Tomorrow it comes into print.

THROUGH THE LENS

Through The News-Journal camera lens you'll see the services to be offered under the group hospitalization plan. You'll meet the new teachers in Mansfield's public schools. You'll visit Carl Oberlin's farm. And you'll see a number of interesting places and people of the Mansfield area.

The "Do You Remember" series takes you back to the days when George W. Stattler was postmaster.

For general reading there will be society, sports, fiction, political comment, women's features, and timely editorials.

Caution!

Readers are reminded that dispatches from the belligerent nations of Europe and from the Far East are subject to censorship at the source.

War Department Speeds Up Production of Materials

ARMY GETS SET TO STRENGTHEN MOBILE UNITS

Manufacturers Told to Get Ready For Big Orders For Defense.

WASHINGTON — The army moved today to strengthen its "streamlined" divisions with greater armament as defense officials undertook to speed up production of all war materials.

Deficiences uncovered during the recent maneuvers were given by the war department as reasons for the army changes.

The other defense developments:

The war department authorized nine manufacturers to go ahead with $170,000,000 worth of plant expansions for manufacture of machine guns, small arms, ammunition and chemical components of explosives. They were given "speed-up letters" authorizing them to proceed while details of contracts are worked out.

The department awarded contracts totaling $41,440,470 for spare parts: 150 training planes and spare parts, 46 cargo type planes and spare parts; and engines. Delivery dates were not announced.

The administration established controls over export of plans and equipment for production of aviation gasoline and of plans and machinery for manufacturing airplanes and engines. President Roosevelt, by proclamation, directed that licenses be required for the exports. The president said the action was solely a step in the husbanding of resources essential to defense.

The defense commission in a declaration of policy said that "speed of delivery on all items of the defense program is essential."

The declaration, sent to congress by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday added:

"Price, while not the sole consideration, is of outstanding significance, and every effort must be made to secure a fair price."

The revamped army divisions announced yesterday, will have 14 officers and men instead of 12,000 and will have greatly increased armament.

Mother Wouldn't Let Bridegroom Take Honeymoon

AKRON — (AP) — Mrs. Lennys Pugh Cornell never had a honeymoon, she told Judge Ray B. Watters, because her mother-in-law wouldn't permit it.

"We were married in Canton July 22, 1939," she said, "identifying the bridegroom as William L. Cornell.

"Where did you go on your honeymoon?" her attorney said.

"There wasn't any honeymoon."

"Where did you take up residence together?"

"We didn't. Right after we were married he went home to get his clothes and didn't came back. His mother wouldn't let him."

"Next time," observed Judge Watters, "you'd better get his mother's permission. Divorce granted."

DECLARES NAVY BEST IN WORLD

Secretary Knox Elated by U. S. Fleet Appearance.

HONOLULU — (AP) — Intensive study of the United States fleet in action has convinced Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox it is the "greatest" in the world.

Secretary Knox, seated last night in a hotel room from whose window he could see a portion of the fleet at anchor in Pearl harbor, spoke with quiet conviction:

"The United States has the greatest, the most powerful and the most effective fleet on the high seas anywhere in the world."

CAR LOCATED

Slain Ohioan's Auto Found In Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Police today sought clues to the identity of a killer wanted for a Cincinnati murder after the slain man's automobile was found abandoned on a street here.

The car belonged to Robert Myers of Cincinnati, who was mysteriously killed Wednesday night here. Two Cincinnati detectives came here to assist in the investigation and search for the machine for fingerprints.

DUNN, N. C. (AP) — Farmer J. J. Parker bought his children a bicycle.

He went riding and broke a leg. His little daughter tried out the wheel the next day and broke her nose. His son hopped on it next and started for the family groceries.

MANSFIELDER IS GUEST

SHELBY—Miss Mary Ann Miller of Mansfield was a guest of Beta Alpha Chi sorority when it held an outing yesterday at Seiber park. A social time followed the wiener roast.

Union President Convicted of Fund Theft

Up and Down THE STREET

Who in Mansfield has some old catalogs or pamphlets of the Aultman & Taylor company? The Henry Ford museum at Dearborn, Mich., wants some of these to complete its Aultman & Taylor exhibit of old agricultural machinery. If you know where there is anything of this sort write a letter to Fred Smith, The Edison Institute, Dearborn, Mich., and tell him about it, please.

Mansfielders writing to people in Estonia, Germany, Latvia Lithuania, Poland, and Russia probably have no idea how the United States mail gets through to those countries. Postoffice officials here received a notice from Washington today that mail posted at the local postoffice for those countries should be sent to San Francisco, instead of New York. From San Francisco, the mail will go to Siberia via Japan, then across the Siberian railway to the designated countries.

When it comes to puff balls it takes Dale Milligan, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milligan, 473 Howard street, to find 'em. Playing in a ravine near Burns street yesterday afternoon the youth came upon one of the giant fungi which, weighed seven pounds. It measured 42 inches in circumference, believed to be of record size, Milligan says.

It wasn't grass but potatoes that county commissioners found growing in a Ganges street yesterday when they went to the northern Richland county hamlet to view an alley which residents had asked them to vacate. C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the alley, which hasn't been used for a long time, was producing a pretty fair crop of potatoes. The man who planted them said he had to do it to keep the weeds down. Commissioners will hold a final hearing on the proposed abandonment next Friday. If the alley is vacated, it will legally become a part of the property owner's potato patch.

CROWD BOTHERS ARCTIC VETERAN

Once Lived Alone, Hemmed In By 25 Neighbors Now.

POINT BARROW, Alaska—(AP)—Charlie Brower, grizzled veteran of the Arctic who recalls that once he was the only white man north of Nome, would like to move.

The census shows 25 white residents. That is the largest in the history of Barrow, the farthest North American community.

Brower declares "it's getting too crowded."

But there's no place farther north to go.

OHIO U. TURNS AGAINST ISMS

University President Bans All Subversive Elements.

ATHENS—(AP)—Ohio university offered a cold shoulder today to foreign "isms."

Dr. Herman G. James, university president, said the campus had no place for Communism, Fascism, Nazism or "their fellow travelers."

"People with those leanings should recognize that this is not the time to see how far they can go in exercising their freedom of speech before the house falls down around them," he said at yesterday's initial faculty meeting of the school year.

PAYMENT RAISED

Ohio Unemployment Compensation Given Increase.

COLUMBUS — (NS) — Administrator H. C. Atkinson said today that the Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation was taking immediate steps to increase the average payments for total unemployment from $10.65 to $11.50 a week.

Atkinson said he is preparing a liberalized benefit scale, combining new interpretations of the unemployment insurance law as a result of an announcement made by the federal social security [illegible] would not supercede rulings of Ohio courts and the attorney general.

WILLKIE SWINGS WEST INTO CORN BELT ON CAMPAIGN TOUR

CHICAGO — (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie, his voice husky from rapid-fire speechmaking, today followed up an eight-hour campaign tour of Chicago's teeming streets with a swing into the heart of the corn belt.

In contrast to his appearances yesterday before steel and stockyard workers and a noisy, confetti-throwing crowd downtown, the Republican presidential nominee's week-end schedule called for brief train stops in downstate Illinois and southeastern Iowa.

He was expected, however, to reiterate generally the theme of his talks here—a pledge for more jobs through economic improvement, a demand for a strong defense program, and opposition to political "bosses."

Estimating that he had seen "almost a million citizens," Willkie said friends had told him that more people were jammed into the loop district than at any time since the welcome for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh after his trans-Atlantic flight in 1927.

Willkie wore a broad smile and waved both arms during his city tour but his face was serious when he gave his impromptu talks. The last of these came at dusk to a gathering in a colored ball park.

"At every opportunity," Willkie told the crowd, "I have struck at all types of intolerance that have come my way. The colored people are entitled to every right that every other citizen is entitled to.

"If elected, I will see that relief is continued—without discrimination—until we can get the wheels of industry started."

In all his talks he declared that his election would mean "more and more jobs, and as the years go on, higher and higher wages."

TRIP PROBED

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The special senate committee appointed to police this year's elections was faced today with the prospect of deciding formally the questions raised by Republican leaders as to whether President Roosevelt's speaking trip over Labor Day week-end was "political."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee, asked the senate group to find out who paid the expenses for the presidential train and to determine whether these costs should come within the $3,000,000 limit on presidential campaign expenditures imposed by the Hatch politics act.

Martin and other Republican spokesmen have asserted that the presidential trip, from Hyde Park, N. Y., into the Tennessee valley area, was part of a "political campaign" for re-election. Democratic leaders have maintained that the president's speeches dedicating Great Smoky mountains national park and the Chickamauga dam on the Tennessee river were "non-political."

Man Sought For Duck Theft, Now Held For Molesting.

Although arrested by deputy sheriffs who suspected him of stealing 11 ducks from a farm near Ganges, John Miller, 32, of R. D. 2, Shelby, was held today on a statutory charge involving a 15-year-old girl.

The charge was filed by Deputy Sheriff Glenn P. Freeman, one of the officers who took Miller into custody Thursday at his home.

Miller admitted having improper relations with the girl, officers said, after a relative of Miller accused him in the presence of deputy sheriffs who were questioning him about the missing ducks. He is being held at county jail.

SCALISE HEARS GUILTY VERDICT AFTER 17 HOURS

Liable to 50 Years In Pen on Grand Larceny and Forgery Counts.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — George Scalise, former $1,666 a month president of the Building Service Employes' International union, was found guilty today of stealing from the union's treasury.

He was convicted of one count of grand larceny and four counts of third degree forgery. The jury failed to agree on five counts of larceny and embezzlement.

Judge Jacob Gould Schurman, jr., revoked Scalise's bond of $25,000 and committed him to the tombs. He will be sentenced Sept. 27.

The maximum penalty on each of the counts of which Scalise was convicted was five to 10 years imprisonment. Thus he is liable to 50 years imprisonment. He is a second offender, having served a term for white slavery 27 years ago, and the Baumes habitual criminal law is applicable.

The larceny charge carries a maximum sentence of 10 years, and each forgery count carries a maximum five-year sentence for a first offender. The penalty for forgery is double in the case of second offenders.

Scalise had waited all night in the courtroom for the verdict, which came at 5 a. m., after 17½ hours of deliberation. On hearing it, his face fell and he sat down glumly, but he did not lose control.

The larceny count of which Scalise was convicted charged that he appropriated $2,857 in union funds on deposit in the Sterling National bank in New York on March 29, 1940. The four forgery counts accused him of submiting false expense accounts to the union for the months of June and October, 1937; February, 1938, and August, 1939.

The five larceny counts on which the jury disagreed charged him with the theft of $9,662.

ASHTABULA —(NS)— The taking of options on land in Ashtabula, Saybrook and Geneva townships, Ashtabula county, for a "blind principal" continued today while the identity of the principal remained obscure.

Most frequently heard reports were that the war department was planning a powder or TNT plant on the land, all of which lies between the New York Central tracks and Lake Erie.

Francis Martin, one of those taking the options, said he did not know how much more land he would be asked to obtain options on, although he had been working on the deal for 60 days.

Not That It Matters

Ever Take a Ride On a Log Train Into the Mountain Forests? It's Lots of Fun

—By JANE WILLIAMS.

Joyce Kilmer Inn,
Robbinsville, N. C.

SOME DAY, when a public highway has been built back into the mountain forests where the Bemis Lumber company now has its logging camp, I shall remember that I made the trip when there were no roads of any kind back there except the private railroad spur of the lumber company.

We got up at 5 a. m. in order to get out to the crossing and meet the "President's Special" which took us the first 14 miles on a standard railroad track. The "Vice President's Special" travels the last eight miles on a narrow gauge. It took three and a half hours to make the 22 miles.

But then you should see the President's Special. It is the body of a 1924 Chevrolet mounted on railroad wheels. One door is tied shut with a piece of rope, and the other is missing. It tows two small hand cars. Did you ever ride in the bed of an old-fashioned wagon on dirt roads? That was smooth in comparison with the President's Special as it went clackety-clack over the wavy rails.

WE RODE through a strange world, something like the setting for "Outward Bound." The fog still blanketed the mountains and they looked like phantom hills reaching to the sky as we clackety-clacked between them, always going upward as though we were leaving our own world behind and bumping along toward eternity.

The sun was out by the time we reached the narrow gauge and the Vice President's Special was similar to the first "train," only more so. Once it had been a Ford—back in 1928—but all that remained was the engine and the hood. It had neither windshield, steering wheel, body nor cushions. But a platform was mounted on railroad wheels and we sat flat on it. I had a sort of honor seat, on a box beside the "engineer" and as a part of the "crew" I had to sand the wheels and tracks by trickling sand down through a funnel and pipe.

We had dinner at the camp in the mess shack: stood on the big rocks in the clear cold, Snowbird creek and hurled stones at a target over the water. Two cunning little wild Russian boars came down to the water's edge to watch us. They had been captured in the mountains (Russian boars were imported into these North Carolina mountains some years ago and they are becoming quite tame.)

BUT the ride back home—it will go down in my Book of Books. I forgot the terrific jolting and cramped legs. We seemed to fly over the rude log trestles in our descent. A convoy of yellow butterflies followed us and stopped to rest sometimes on great chenille clusters of purple wild asters. Along the forest aisle were tall cucumber trees, with their great green leaves and long scarlet spikes; hemlock, white pine, beech and oak and sourwood with its thousands of flowers like clusters or lillies-of-the-valley.

When I stepped off the Special, at the end of the trip, I fully expected to fall apart, like a shower of bones dumped in one spot. But even if I had, the trip would have been worth it.

MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY: Was in the court room last Saturday when a 72-year-old mountaineer was sentenced to state's prison for the killing of his son. The man was stooped and small and his hard, bright eyes were beseeching and desperate as he looked straight at the judge. It was hard to believe that this pathetic, helpless man was a killer.

His record of sins was greater than that piled up by the average criminal, the judge said. In 1912 Homer Martin had been arrested for making liquor and was held to the federal court in Raleigh. But he ran off, deserting his wife and six small children. Making his way to Virginia, he had made a bigamous marriage and started another family, completely ignoring the existence of the first family.

And then he killed a man and was sentenced to prison for life. He served 18 years and was paroled. Old and broken, he turned to the wife he had deserted and the family he had abandoned. They permitted him to come back to the old farm in the mountains near Robbinsville. At first he was humble and very meek. His son, Otis, had built up the farm, cared for his mother and built a new house for her.

But family quarrels broke out; the old man abused his wife and his sons began to hate him as only these mountain men can hate. One night Homer stood in the door of an out building with a 33 gauge rifle in his hands. Otis came up from the barn, a 44 automatic pistol in his pocket. There were seven shots fired, two from the rifle and five from the pistol. The brothers claim the rifle shot was first, but the old man said the pistol was fired first. Anyway, Otis was dead and the old man, with four shots in his body, was once more a fugitive.

The jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter, despite the efforts of the other sons to send their father to North Carolina's lethel chamber.

The judge's speech, as he sentenced the old man to 10 years in prison, was a dramatic episode in itself, with its tolerance and understanding of the mountain folks and their hard lives.

Later, when one of the natives was telling of the scene, he said, in deeply awed tones: "When the ole man's lawyer was a-beggin the judge for mercy, the big, ole sympathetic tears was a-running down his cheeks—but ole Homer he nev-v-vah shed a tear!"

I SUPPOSE there isn't a lot of difference between smoking and chewing tobacco, but the latter seems a lot worse — especially when the ladies indulge. But it is very ordinary down here. In fact, it seems to me that the majority of women, young and old, either chew or use snuff.

A neat trick is their spitting. Two women sat in the court room beside the open, second story window. They would place two fingers —the index and the second finger —vertically over their lips, and let go. I asked the man next to me why they spit through their fingers.

"Got more power," he said, "and better aim."

The men in the court room didn't bother to use the windows. The open fire place and the floor served very well.

BRITISH COAST DEFENSE TESTED BY NAZI FLIERS

England Fears Invasion In 48 Hours; Misty Weather Hinders Germans.

London were comparatively light, the Germans struck repeatedly at objectives in the outer districts for eight hours and 25 minutes, guided to their targets by bright moonlight.

Londoners were driven to shelter twice before noon today by new alarms, but neither gunfire nor planes were heard over the city. An alarm at 9:26 a. m. lasted five minutes and the second at 11:01 a. m. ended in 15 minutes. In between, however, explosions — either of bombs or anti-aircraft fire—were heard in the London area.

A government communique acknowledged that fires were started at various points in the city during the night raid but that all of them either had been extinguished or brought under control.

One German plane was reported shot down by ground defenses after being caught in a web of searchlights over east London.

The morning newspapers declared essential services still were carrying on—"limping a little in some places," the News-Chronicle said—and asserted that seven consecutive nights in air raid shelters had failed to shake Londoners' morale.

The threat of delayed-action bombs remained ever-present, however.

Five unexploded bombs still lay in the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral, which was guarded closely.

Raids also were reported in other parts of the United Kingdom. Early this morning a lone plane attacked a Welsh town and four persons were believed killed when a bomb struck a hotel.

The Royal Air Force, battling almost endlessly in defense of the island, carried on, too, with its counter-offensive against German bases across the channel.

Observers at Dover saw repeated flashes of anti-aircraft fire rising early today from the German-occupied French coast, indicating a renewed British attack on Nazi artillery emplacements.

In the vicinity of Cap Gris Nez, from which German guns have shelled the Dover area, the firing appeared particularly intense, and watchers reported a brilliant pillar of flame shot high into the air.

While the British transport ministry appealed to London motorists to keep private automobiles out of the central part of the city "in order to maintain freedom of movement on the roads," the air ministry carried forward the growing list of London casualties.

Wednesday night's raids killed 110 persons and injured 260, it was announced, bringing the totals from last Saturday through Wednesday to 1,245 dead and 4,810 injured.

The toll Thursday night was withheld although a communique said it was "not many."

Friday's dead likewise were not yet counted, but the list was said to be extensive after the longest daylight raid of the war—four hours and nine minutes—during which Buckingham palace, Downing street and Whitehall, where most of the government's business is transacted, were hit.

mers, the two congressmen from Bergen county who visited the ruins, said the possibility of sabotage existed.

Thomas is a member of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities. Osmers said he would demand a congressional investigation of the disaster. He said, "I don't know if we'll ever be able to prove it, but my guess is sabotage."

The suspicions appeared to center on the fact that the Bund has a camp in the vicinity. Sheriff Quick raided the camp last July 4 and arrested G. Wilhelm Kunze, national Bund leader in the absence of Fritz Kuhn, who is serving a term in Sing Sing prison for theft, along with Augustus Klapprott, the Bund camp director, and Mathias Kohler, head of the Bund's youth movement. They were charged with violating a statute forbidding drills in uniform. A grand jury, to be impaneled next week, will act on the cases. The three are under $1,000 bonds.

The toll of Wednesday's explosion now stood at 48 known dead, 10 of them still unidentified, and 74 seriously injured.

AIR CAPITAL

CHICOPEE, Mass.—(INS)—"Chicopee the New England Capital of the Air." Thus reads the inscription on 15 large signs on highways leading into the city, placed by the local Chamber of Commerce. The signs were inspired by the selection of Chicopee as the site for the Northeast Army Air base.

TRADITION SHATTERED

BERKELEY, Cal. —(U.P.)— After a 70-year battle for equal rights, co-eds at the University of California have succeeded in breaking down the tradition that the editor of The Daily Californian, campus newspaper, must always be a man. Miss Sarah Henderson, 21, of Pasadena, majoring in political science and "queen of college journalists," won the coveted post. To make the victory complete, her managing and city editors will also be co-eds.

OFF SWAT LIST.

SANTA ROSA, Cal. —(U.P.)— Sonoma county fruit growers are hoping that anyone executing the slogan of "...wat the fly" will make sure in advance it isn't the Tachina fly. The latter resembles closely the common "blue bottle" fly. It lives entirely on caterpillars, one of the worst fruit enemies, and local growers are counting on its activity this year for a good fruit crop.

NAZI WARNING GIVES BRITISH FINAL CHOICE

'Surrender or Destruction' Ultimatum Laid Down By Berlin Government.

that the British have not attempted them. They have. But they have been halted. Maybe they will come again and reach the capital but no longer in any numbers. Generals fog, rain and clouds now are working in German favor.

"If the British government thinks it can avert further German attacks by not attacking us—like in a football game—it is mistaken. The German air force will continue to give answer.

"The British have challenged the German nation for many months by bombing civilians. It is not a question as to whether one German life is worth 10 or 100 British lives but a question of British criminal unpreparedness to defend their own population."

It was said that early German raids over Britain today were for purposes of "armed reconnaissancse" to observe the results of previous raids.

During the night, it was asserted, large scale attacks were made on London and "military and industrial objectives" in almost all parts of the city were bombed.

British airplanes which entered Germany by way of Holland during the night and were believed to have aimed at Berlin were driven off by anti-aircraft fire, Nazis said.

Berlin had its second straight night of quiet.

Lack of news regarding activity by German planes over England was taken by Nazis to mean that the weather "continued sufficiently bad to prevent attacks from attaining the intensity of previous night raids."

Earlier, Nazis said that ideal bombing weather had enabled German raiders to continue attacks yesterday not only against London but against "targets farther north and northwest without any losses."

A Nazi discussing attacks on London said:

"It can be said with safety that British resistance depends mostly on London's resistance. If London's defenses, war industries and economic targets are successfully bombed England will be in the position of a fighter plane without an engine."

Asked whether Germany would be content with aerial bombardments or would follow up air raids with an invasion the informant said:

"We are now seeking how the air force can be a decisive factor in modern war. Once our air defenses—Royal Air Force aircraft production apparatus—the actual occupation with land forces becomes practically a secondary technical matter."

Last night Nazis had announced that German planes had bombed "oil and gasoline tanks" near Buckingham palace.

The Nazis said that the British began the bombings of military objectives within the limits of big cities and that the German attack on London was merely retaliation.

The newspaper B-Z-Am-Mittag under a banner line which read "Heart of British empire picture of destruction and annihilation after one week of German retaliatary blows," commented editorially:

"Attacks on the German civil population have not yet ceased, therefore the English government and the English people must put up with the fact that the German air force is continuing attacks not only with undiminished force but in increasing number daily and nightly."

DAIRY PRICES

CHICAGO—(AP)—A combination of factors stemming from the European war has brought America's dairy farmer higher prices this year than last in spite of greater production, trade statistics indicated today.

Market experts said that the importance of this situation in rural areas can be judged from the fact that dairy products last year led all other commodities in producing cash income for the farmer.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It is a favorite generality around here that one stage flop necessarily embitters an actor against the footlights, but John Garfield is at least one exception.

Young Garfield knew his share of stage flops before he became a movie star. In that light his flop in "Heavenly Express," his latest stage venture, had little more significance to him than a flop of pre-movie days.

That goes for all the movie lights who have returned to the stage—for Fredric March who picked a bad one before he picked a good one in "The American Way;" for Frances Farmer who did all right in "Golden Boy" but not so well in "Thunder Rock;" for Katharine Hepburn who took a merciless roasting for "The Lake" but made her critics eat their words when she picked "Philadelphia Story." It goes, too, for the catastrophic "Romeo and Juliet" of Vivian Leigh and Laurence Olivier.

All a Broadway flop means for a movie star—aside from the hurt and temporary loss of prestige—is that the particular star in the particular play he selected was not acceptable. It does not follow that the star is doomed to failure forever, nor that he must be "cured" (as if a real ham could ever be cured!) for all time.

Another conclusion to which we often jump is that Hollywood always is stupid because so many potential stars are passed up here and later grabbed because of their Broadway fame. This happens time and again who am I to say that Hollywood is exempt from stupidity? But when you regard Broadway as a showcase and a training school, you can see that Hollywood has its reasons for "suddenly awakening" to the hitherto neglected charms of a Mary Martin or a Betty Grable.

No housewife ever bought a can of soup that wasn't advertised and displayed on the shelves. No housewife ever bought a soup twice that was canned prematurely, minus seasoning and full flavor. And Hollywood passes up talent that is half-baked, unperfected, inexpertly displayed.

Why not try it here first then? Hollywood does—sometimes. For the rest, Director John Cromwell has the answer:

"The screen doesn't always give a girl a chance to prove her worth. She too often is typed after a single success. On the stage she can round out her experience with varied types. Hollywood's instructors are competent but can't give sufficient time to any individual."

Director George Cukor tells it on himself that he passed up Bette Davis in her early stage days because she couldn't act. The truth probably is that the Bette of that era really couldn't act. That is true of many another player who "failed" in Hollywood and later was wooed to return after a stage hit. Part of the time, at least, the rejected ones upon going to the stage learned things about acting that they never knew before.

More Are Studying Spanish

AN increased interest in the study of Spanish is being noted in United States high schools and colleges as a result of anticipated closer relations with South American countries in which this language predominates.

Reports from over the country indicate increased enrollment of from 15 to 65 per cent in Spanish classes. Some schools are adding a course in Portuguese, which is the official language in Brazil.

It appears to be only in the United States that familiarity with one language is regarded as sufficient to meet ordinary requirements. Except in several of the professions, some knowledge of Latin or Greek has been regarded more as an educational furbelow than as having practical value.

Spanish became popular during the World war period when German was discarded in many schools because of war-time intolerance, and French will probably continue in favor as a cultural language despite the totalitarian shadow that has temporarily fallen on France.

From a use standpoint, it now appears that young people attracted to the study of Spanish are most likely to find opportunity to profit by their choice.

Habit of Careless Driving

A SECOND Richland county accident, within a week, involving a school bus and endangering the lives of a number of children, emphasizes the need for better understanding of traffic regulations by many drivers who take too much for granted.

Those yellow lines, for instance, used to mark sections of the highway where passing is forbidden on account of slopes or curves, are too frequently ignored by drivers whom you would expect to know better.

Illegal speed on residence streets is another of the common infractions to which so little attention is paid by the police that many drivers regard themselves as immune from either arrest or accident—and then it happens! Two cars come together head-on because one is being driven at too high speed and the other attempts a left turn without assured clearance.

"Going through the red" at intersections guarded by traffic lights; starting on the amber light; parking on the wrong side of the street; driving with insufficient lights or failing to turn on lights at the required time (half an hour after sunset); failing to stop before pulling out of an alley, and at stop signs—all of these so-called "minor" violations of traffic regulations tend to increase traffic dangers and also encourage other drivers to commit similar offenses against public safety and convenience.

As was said recently by a highway patrolman, "If every motorist would drive in the way he knows that he should, there would be an immediate material reduction in automobile accidents."

Big Item of Farm Income

EXTENT to which milk production contributes to farm cash income is more appreciated after learning that milk put $24,000,000 more in cash in farmers pocketbooks in June and July this year than in the same months of 1939, according to the national Milk Industry Foundation.

It is revealed that total farm cash income from milk during the first seven months of 1940 was $885,000,000 as compared with $791,000,000 in the 1939 period.

"This increase in farm cash income shows the importance of milk as a mainstay of farm purchasing power," according to the foundation, "and is particularly impressive because milk production has been larger than a year ago, with more cows on farms and better pastures.

"Cash income from milk is of great economic importance as milk is the largest source of farm cash income and is paid for monthly, not at the end of the season as in the case of other crops. This cash is also used for current purchases of merchandise and supplies."

Patriarchal Longevity Revised

THE PATRIARCHS of old biblical days were not anywhere near so old as they are represented in the book of Genesis, says Dr. Andrew Efron, a former Russian scholar at Yale. He has found a key that unlocks a lot of ancient lore and, he says, makes it necessary to revise the age records of all those venerable pioneers from Adam to Noah.

It is in the form of a tree-shaped symbol seen on rocks and in other records of the ancient world. It tells many things, he explains, by means of the number, length, position and thickness of its branches. By studying various specimens of this mysterious symbol, he has worked out a code which makes a sort of secret shorthand system and was much used in olden times. The Greek philosophers and mathematicians, he believes, knew about it and used it.

He figures out that Methuselah's age was not 969 years, but only 192; that Adam died at 96 instead of 930, and Noah was only 48 years old when he built the Ark instead of 600, and so on.

It sounds quite mysterious—and even if Dr. Efron is right, it's painful to be disillusioned about those patriarchs.

Skilled Workers Out of Practice

ACCORDING to Miss Frieda S. Miller, industrial commissioner of New York state, more than 600,000 skilled craftsmen are job-hunting through the public employment agencies of the nation because they are unable to meet the specifications which industry demands. The shortage in skilled workers of which industry complains is a shortage of men of recent experience. The thousands who have been out of work for more than a year cannot step right into a shop and begin where they left off.

That is why re-training men of past experience is just as important as special training for beginners. The old skills are not wholly lost. They can be restored with practice. Preparing as many of these workers as possible, and quickly, to take an active part in industry is as important for national defense as training soldiers.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — For days now Broadway has been in a story telling mood, and at the risk of being silly I am going to pass along the one that is getting the biggest play in the backstage dressing rooms and at restaurant tables. It's a hard story to tell, because it should be acted with gestures, but then maybe you can supply your own.

This story concerns three little kittens whose names were Phttt, Phttt-Phttt, and Phttt-Phttt-Phttt. They were the happiest little kittens you ever saw, until, one day, the Phttt came down with the fever.

"Little Phttt is burning up," cried little Phttt-Phttt to her little siser Phttt-Phttt-Phttt. "Oh, what shall we do to save her?"

"I know," cried little Phttt-Phttt-Phttt. "I'll run and get the doctor." Which she did, but it was too late. By the time that little Phttt-Phttt,Phttt returned poor little Phttt was dead, and poor little Phttt-Phttt was sobbing her eyes out.

FOR many days after this, little Phttt-Phttt and her sister, little Phttt-Phttt-Phttt, went about very sorrowfully. They gave up playing with the ball of yarn with which the three of them had so frequently cavorted in the good old days when poor little Phttt was alive.

But time, the great healer, heals all wounds, and so one day little Phttt-Phttt and little Phttt-Phttt-Phttt forot all about their sorrow. They began to play again, as healthy young kittens should play. They ran out of doors and raced across the lawn. They played so hard that they scarcely noticed that the sun had gone down and that a cold rain was beginning to fall.

That night, alas and alack, little Phttt-Phttt bobbed up with a sore throat. By morning she was worse. "Oh, dear," cried little Phtt-Phtt, "the fever is burning me up. What shall I do?"

This frightened little Phttt-Phtt-Phttt almost out of her wits, as she remembered only too well what had happened to poor little Phttt when the fevers came.

SO SHE gathered up her skirts and flew down the hill to where the doctor lived.

"Doctor," she panted, "oh, do come quickly. Little Phttt-Phttt has the ague, and I fear some harm will come to her."

"Little Phttt-Phttt-Phttt," consoled the doctor, "calm yourself. Everything will be okay."

So they hurried up the hill to where poor little Phttt-Phttt lay wheezing and coughing. "Say 'ah,' said the doctor, running a stick down poor little Phttt-Phttt's throat. "Yep," he added thoughtfully, "just as I feared. We'll have to give you some medicine."

But alas and alack, poor little Phttt-Phttt passed away before morning, leaving poor little Phttt-Phttt-Phttt all by herself.

That's about all there is to the story, except the moral, which is: Only the Phittest survive.

HE HUFFED AND HE PUFFED

Make Ready for Military Roads

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you see a couple of gents measuring the width of a state highway, taking grade elevations, punching soil-test rods into shoulders and measuring the sag in old bridges, you'll know that the highway is a part of the 80,000-mile network of strategic military roads.

You probably won't see any such gents, because most of the state highway departments already have the information. In the next few weeks they will be pouring it into the Public Roads administration here for tabulation and assembly into a report to the army and the National Defense commission.

Out of that report, with recommendations from the president and action from congress, our strategic military highway network may be improved and repaired. But don't let anybody tell you that at the moment there is any wholesale plan to make super-highways out of every wagon track—or even any national defense plans to "super" highways that aren't already "supered."

Must Support Tanks.

ABOUT the only military roads that will be built immediately are those which lead from the main arteries or cities to new military and naval establishments. In mileage, these roads probably will be negligible. It is likely they will be built with an eye to modern mechanical warfare — wide and strong enough to accommodate the heavy tanks and new heavy gun carriages.

The 80,000-mile network was worked out by the army and the Public Roads administration. It spiderwebs over every state, with east-west and north-south arteries tying together the coast lines and the borders and giving clear outlets from industrial centers to military cantonments and naval supply bases.

Bridge Boom Likely.

MUCH of it, according to preliminary surveys, would be satisfactory for military use even now. The principal difficulties are gaps of poor road that link some of the better highways and about 2,000 bridges that are far from adequate for passage of new, heavier military equipment.

It looks to this unexpert eye as if the bridge building business is in for a boom. If there are 2,000 wobbly bridges that need reinforcing or replacement, that means a heap of new spans, even if some of them are no more than glorified culverts.

Not All at Once.

WHAT effect the survey and subsequent recommendations will have on the counlry's highway system cannot be predicted now. But you can skip the idea that we are going to have in the near future 80,000 miles of highways that will match the 1,900, mile four-lane, earth-divided autobahnen of Germany.

We already have more autobahnen here than that and we'll probably have still more, but it would take years to super-highway the whole networks and make adequate feeders out of all the horse and buggy roads that lead into it.

Listen, World!

Don't Be Satisfied—Rebel!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

REBEL! Have at least one fighting cause in your program. Not merely a personal peeve but some big, impersonal issue that burns you up and gives drama and meaning to your existence.

No life can be healthy without such an issue, without the warmth and renewal that comes with rebellion. Few of us sicken or die of disease. We wither away from boredom. Our lives are so narrow they become actual cells. And, to our doom, we're comfortable in those cells. No one criticizes us or frightens us or challenges us. Nothing forces us to make unpleasant changes and adjustments. We live like moles, unaware of the great winds roaring high above our dull and drowsy heads, or the quickening glory of the sunrise.

Don't be a mole!
Get out of that hole!
Get out and face the rumpus!
GET OUT AND REBEL!

Rebel if only to save yourself from the creeping death of dry rot.

Rebel against what?

That won't be hard to find. There are great issues, great wrongs, all about you. Perhaps in your muffled, mole existence, you have thought that this world was a free and happy place, kindly, generous, civilized. It isn't! It's still only a few jumps removed from the primeval jungle of utter savagery. Wherever you look, you'll see the mark of that savagery.

Every city has its rotten core. Little children are being denied educations . . . exploited as laborers. Mothers struggle against poverty and ignorance. They bear their children without medical aid and rear them in squalor. Men are cast out like exhausted slag when their working days are over. Old people go homeless and hungry—terribly afraid. The young have no proper place to meet and court, no adequate preparation for marriage. The very air you breathe is rank with the sweat of wretched bodies— acrid with their tears.

The future of humanity—and your own self-respect—demands that you rebel against these things.

REBEL!
Get interested!
Get sore!
Get busy!

Stop being a mere bystander. Stop reading the headlines, listening to the commentators, watching the news reels. They're all very well in their way, but they are no substitute for real thought and emotion. You'll never really live as long if you let the other fellow do it for you. You've got to sit in on the game yourself, get to put in your own stake.

SO REBEL!

Stop playing with your baby blocks and your all-day sucker. You're a great, big, grown-up person now, and you'd better act the part unless you want to join the Dodo on the museum shelves.

THEN REBEL!

Pick yourself a cause—cut yourself a club—and get going. That's the only thing that will keep the glory in life, the fire in your heart, and save your stuffed hide from the taxidermist.

Thinking Out of His Limits.

Prof. Albert Einstein, of fourth dimension fame, seems to be slipping in originality. At least, when he made a speech recently at the Conference of Science, Philosophy and Religion at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, he did not spring one of his amazing, superintellectual, mathematical theories. He tried to argue God out of existence.

A lot of philosophers have worked at that. Most of them are dead now. They had little effect on the thinking of the great mass of humanity.

Probably Einstein would say they don't think. And one of their defenders might come back with the challenge that Einstein is trying to think out his limits. They could say the mathematician and philosopher reasoned pretty well out to the fourth dimension, but to reason away God, whose existence and activities are from everlasting to everlasting throughout all time, is a task that makes the fourth dimension appear trivial.—Detroit News.

Roosevelt Gives 'Political Speech'; Willkie Starts Speaking Campaign

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A NEWSMAN asked Wendell Willkie: "Are you going to ignore Mr. Roosevelt as he is ignoring you?"

"I have a hunch," the Republican nominee replied, "that before the campaign is over, Mr. Roosevelt won't ignore me."

Mr. Roosevelt was due to address a convention of the International Teamsters Union (AFL) in Washington. Beforehand he hadn't been sure whether it would be political or not. Radio folks wondered whether the radio time would be gratis (a presidential address) or whether a bill should be sent to the Democratic national committee (a political talk). So FDR's secretary said the talk would be FDR's labor speech of the campaign, and that Democrats had agreed to pay the bill. The speech marked the first time in two months that FDR publicly admitted awareness of the fact that he is competing for high office. Still he did not mention Willkie by name.

Would Draft Hold-Outs.

He answered Mr. Willkie's two-weeks-ago challenge on drafting non-cooperative industries by flatly approving such a move. (Willkie had made qualified objections.) "No business," FDR said, "is above its government."

He said certain of his opponents, for four months before election, loudly proclaim they are labor's true friend" then forget the laboring man by January.

Next night elfish Fiorella LaGuardia, Mayor of New York, addressed the nation on the topic, "My Choice for President." At varying times he has been Republican, Socialist American Laborite and New Dealer. What he would be on Nov. 5 was a secret he had nursed in his broad chest.

As a puissant politiker in the crucial state of New York both major parties courted him. Which way he would go was clear even before he talked, for Democrats were paying for the radio time.

Wallace Sees Appeasers.

Out in Weeping Water, Neb., bashful Henry Wallace, FDR's running mate, may have sounded the Democratic keynote:

"This is a campaign between Roosevelt and Hitler. The Republican candidate is not an appeaser and not a friend of Hitler. I'll say too that every Republican is not an appeaser. But you can be sure that every . . . Hitlerite, every appeaser is a Republican."

He charged that Republicans were obstructing defense and that Republican industrialists want to do business as soon as possible with a "German-controlled Europe."

Retorted Willkie: "If he meant working out compromises with the dictators, then he was 100% wrong. But if he meant to say that the Republican party is the party of peace, he spoke the truth because I shall never lead this country into any European war."

And added pro-draft Republican Senator Austin: "The hysterical character of his accusation (of obstruction) is apparent from a check of Republican votes in the House and Senate."

Maine Goes Republican.

Meanwhile Mr. Willkie began his 15-day swing through 18 Western states. In his 12-car special were 100 persons.

For cheer he had results of Maine's election, the first statewide one of the year. The old slogan, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation" was pretty well torpedied in 1936 when only Vermont followed Maine. But on Tuesday, Republican pluralities generally exceeded those of 1936.

Latest Allies In Germ War.

—By DR. CLENDENING

MEDICAL journals for the past two years have devoted their space largely to accounts of the action of sulfanilamide on various diseases. This new drug seems to answer the requirements for "the magic bullet" recently exploited on the movie screen—a drug which is deadly for germs, but does not harm the human tissues in which the germs are growing. We have had a number of these bullets for the protozoan diseases — quinine for malaria, for instance, and ipecac for amoebic dysentery. All of our experience, such as it was, indicated that the magic bullet for germs would be a dye (mercurochrome is a familiar example), and sulfanilamide is a form of dye.

There seems to be no doubt now that in many infections it does do that magical thing—when absorbed into the blood, it kills or stops the action of infective living germs while doing no harm to the living blood cells or body cells in the midst of which the germs are growing.

Effective in Many Infections.

The list of diseases in which the new drugs have been found useful is long. Most of them are due to the kind of germs known as cocci.

Sulfanilamide is very effective against streptococcal infections, even those hitherto considered fatal—such as blood-stream infections. In scarlet fever, which is probably due to a streptococcus, it works wonderfully, and in middle ear infections in children the results are so good that in one hospital I know of the number of mastoid operations last year were cut in two as compared to previous years.

In pneumonia the saving in life has amounted to from 50 to 75 per cent. A form of the drug closely related ad called sulfapyridine has, however, proved more effective than sulfanilamide itself. In certain forms of pneumonia hitherto considered almost invariably fatal, the death rate has been cut to 10 or 15 per cent, and while the final summary of results does not quite justify the statement made a year or two ago by a prominent physician that 'Now, no one need die of pneumonia," still the results have shown great improvement.

Action a Mystery.

Staphylococcal infections are usually seen on the skin in the form of boils or carbuncles. But when the staphylococcus does invade the blood, it is a much more serious condition than streptococcic invasion. Another form of the drug, sulfathiazole, has proved more effective than the original in these conditions.

No one knows certainly just how the drugs act. There are two schools of thought—one which believes that they kill or inhibit the action of the germs by direct action, the other which believes they stimulate the tissues to furnish unfavorable ground for the germs' growth.

Abroad

France's Ex-Heroes.

It was the fate of former Generalissimo Gamelin and former Premiers Daladier and Reynaud to be France's highest leaders in the last months before she started to collapse. This week all three were arrested by the Petain government in the "war blame" cases before the Supreme Court meeting in secret at Riom. No charges were made. Berlin explained their arrests as "precautionary measures" taken against persons "dangerous to the state."

Meanwhile Gamelin's successor, beagle-nosed Marshal Weygand, was dispatched to Africa to cope with rebellions against the Vichy government.

London As Target.

London this week was made the special target of Germany's aerial smash, it seemed, because one-third of England's "potentiels de guerre" (munition and plane factories, food supplies, power plants) were located there.

The "all-out" raids converted the charming, sprawled-out-city into a labyrinth of charred wreckage. The worst-raids came at night. These kept Londoners awake. Besides, anti-aircraft guns couldn't answer as effectively then as in daylight. Fire illuminated London targets. Nothing was missed: munition plants, gas mains, oil depots, royal palaces, churches, hospitals, slums.

Herr Hitler wouldn't risk ordering an invasion. Londoners heard, until (1) the RAF had been chased from the sky or (2) civilian morale had cracked.

Many Kinds of Jobs In Army

There will be 271 kinds of jobs open to men in the army besides buck privating. These range from band leader to horse trainer. For example, every 1,000 troops require five barbers, 10 buglers, three carpenters, five chauffeurs, 25 clerks, 10 telephone linemen, five tailors, 20 cooks, two stenographers.

If and when a man is drafted, he'll be interviewed when he reports for duty and classified as to education, occupations, hobbies, leadership and intelligence. Army officers say every effort will be made to place enlisted men in duties where they are best suited.

FORMAL CEREMONY PERFORMED AT CHURCH

Miss Fannie Mary Miller, Joseph Robert Saprano Exchange Nuptial Vows at St. Peter's Early This Morning.

FORMALITY marked the marriage of Miss Fannie Mary Miller, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Miller, 276 Patton avenue, this morning at 9:30 a. m. to Joseph Robert Saprano, son of Mrs. Theresa Saprano, 272 West Fifth street. Msgr. R. C. Goebel read the mass before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church, and Raymond Baum, organist, played the nuptial mass music.

His selections were "March In F." by Joseph Bernards, for the processional, "O Sanctissima," a hymn to the Blessed Virgin, for the offertory, "Melody in G. Op. 46," by Alex Guilmant, for the communion, and the recessional was "Wedding March," by Theodore Stern. The music of the nuptial mass was from the Orbis Factor mass of the 10th century.

Beauty baskets of white gladioli, palms and ferns decorated the altar, and the pews were marked with white satin bows and gladioli. Muslin aisle strips pulled just before the ceremony completed the setting.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Anthony Michael Miller. She was attired in a gown of twisted bridalglow satin made with a high bustline and pointed waist. The skirt was gathered into back fullness which ended in a full-length train. With this she wore a fingertip length veil of bridal illusion attached to a pearl studded coronet. Her only jewelry was a lavelier which belonged to her mother.

Miss Miller carried a semi-colonial bouquet made of gardenias and a white orchid with a shower of white roses and swansonia. The center of the bouquet was removed for the bride's going-away corsage.

The bride, who attended the St. Peter's high school, has been employed at the Hoff Manufacturing company.

She chose Mrs. Michael Augustine as her matron of honor. Mrs. Augustine wore a gown of venetian rose made in a tiered style of faille taffeta with matching velvet bow trim. The gown was cut with full skirt, sweetheart neck and puffed sleeves.

Her hat was a velvet halo style to match the dress, and she also wore matching slippers. The matron of honor carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, gladioli tips and delphinium.

Miss Angeline Miller, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, and Carmela Ann Gregorio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patsy Gregorio, was flower girl. The junior bridesmaid was attired in a gown made similarly to the matron of honor's, but in turquoise blue, and the flower girl was clad in sunburst yellow. Miss Miller carried a bouquet of pink roses, pompons and gladioli tips in a semi-colonial style, and Carmela carried a miniature bouquet of Talisman roses and yellow pompons.

Michael Augustine served as best man. Ushers were Carmen Saprano, brother of the bridegroom, and Conrad Miller, brother of the bride.

A dinner was served later in the day to 65 friends and relatives at the Ranger tavern on the Lexington avenue road. A wedding cake and white gladioli decorated the bride's table.

Mr. and Mrs. Saprano are now on an eastern wedding trip, and upon their return to Mansfield they will be at home at 277 Sheridan avenue. For a traveling costume Mrs. Saprano selected a gray, red and black plaid dress with a black redingote and black accessories.

For the wedding both Mrs. Saprano and Mrs. Miller selected black and white costumes, and wore gardenia corsages.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Norman found Carol's hand and led her through the rain and the darkness.

Laughing, he asked, "Are you still with me?"

"What isn't washed away."

"Hold on . . ."

"How do you know where you're going?"

"Eyes of a cat—I can see in the dark. Don't slip. . . ." His hand was reassuring as the lightning flashed and zigzagged. It seemed as if he were enjoying the soaking. "Not afraid, are you?"

"No!"

"Good. I love it. I shed water like a duck. I think my car is this way. . . ."

"I hope it is . . ."

"Hold on . . ."

Inside the car, he said laughing, "Lucky guess. Are you all right? I won't turn on the car lights. . . ."

She was laughing, too. "Thanks. I'm all right. . . ."

"Don't go out into the rain again. . . ."

"Why not? I can't get wetter . ."

* * *

When he came back and placed the warm coat around her, she thought how happy she was suddenly, how crazily, idiotically happy she was. It had never been like this with Alan, not a high moment like this, and for no reason at all . . . No reason? There was Norman's presence, his gayety in spite of rain and lightning and thunder and physical discomfort. Always the comparison of the two men and always and forever the knowledge that she had made a great mistake. . . . When she was old and there were no more high moments for her, she would come back to this—a dash through the rain, her wet hand in his, her laughter mingling with his. Already she was seeing tonight in memory, knowing that there would never be another like it.

His voice, close, came to her through the darkness after a long silence.

"What have you been doing with yourself all these weeks, Carol?"

Grateful for the shield of darkness, she said, "Oh, helping father with his patients and playing tennis and swimming and trying to be nice to one of Alan's clients, a blind old man. And . . . and trying to make plans for my wedding." Yes, say it, say it, put it between you—Alan and your coming marriage. . . .

"Wedding? You're going through with a wedding, a real church wedding?"

"Wouldn't you?"

"Never. There's still enough of the old tribal instinct in me to wait to run off with my bride. Swoop down and say, 'You're going to marry me, you know. Now! And do it. . . .'

Put Edwina between you, too. "Is that what you and Edwina are going to do? She told me, Norman. She didn't say that it was a secret but I haven't told any one. Congratulations are in order for you, too."

When the lightning came again, sharp and dazzling, lighting the inside of the car, she saw that he was looking at her queerly, a half smile dying on his lips.

"What congratulations, Carol?"

"You—and Edwina—your marriage."

"She told you?"

"The day she drove me home from your house."

After a silence he said, "I'm not going to marry Edwina, Carol. She . . . We've decided that we're just good friends and it's only as a good friend that I'm helping her get her affairs straightened out. Then she's going to New York and get a job and study something. She calls it getting off the merry-go-round and turning over a new leaf. I suppose a lot of people have got the wrong impression of us this summer. We've been together, but we're not in love with each other. Not now, anyhow. . . . Congratulations are not in order for me. They're in order only for you and Alan. So that's what you've been thinking—that I was going to marry Edwina. . . ."

"Of course." But that altered nothing, least of all the plans for a November wedding. Her face felt warm, and seeing that the rain had lessened, she lowered the window and said, "Father knows I'm out here. He'll be wondering about me. I think I'll risk it now . . ."

"You know, Carol, you and I won't be seeing each other again. . . ."

It would begin now, the cordial good-bye. . . . Awfully glad to have known you, Norman. . . . If you ever come back to Newton, stop and see Alan and me. We'll have a house in the Hills, a house we can't afford. . . . Have dinner with us . . . and I'll look through the candlelight at your dear face, your smile, your frown, seeing the hand whose touch I knew, the mouth that kissed me once. . . . Smile, Carol. Make a good job of pretending and . . . watch your love go. . . .

"I don't suppose we shall. Newton and New York don't cross often and you'll have no reason for coming back. I really must go. It's lighter now. I'm sure I can find my car. . . ."

Her hand fumbled with the car door and opened it, and he got out, circled his car and came to her. Together they walked to the small roadster she shared with her father.

"Your coat, Norman. . . ."

"Won't you need it?"

"No. I hope the motor isn't wet. . . ." She thought: This is like dying, like saying good-bye to everything in life that is dear, to life itself! And I'll remember everthing about this last minte. . .

He stood beside the car, the tweed coat over his arm, the spasmodic flashes of lightning illuminating his face every few seconds. As the old motor started reluctantly, she wished that he would say something ridiculous and gay so that they could part laughing.

"Carol . . ."

"Good-bye, Norman. It was nice to know you." Nice!

"And you."

"Good luck. . . ."

He said nothing else as the car jerked and moved along the muddy road. She saw him through the mirror and then, looking ahead, she drove by habit rather than by sight; her tears would not let her see.

An hour later, when Norman had changed the damp brown suit for a dry blue one, he found Edwina playing solitaire in her drawing room. She ordered a drink for him and then, curling up on the divan, smiled at him.

"I hoped you'd come. I've so much to tell you! The phone's been ringing so much that poor Sam is hoarse from answering it. The library sent out packing cases for the books. They wanted to send men but I told them we'd do the packing. Mr. Lane called, too. I think it's a sale although he said he wouldn't want the house until October. Mrs. Lane is visiting her daughter in California. So I won't have to be in a rush about leaving. I'd —I'd like to stay as long as I can.

"It's worked out so well it scares me a little. I can sleep and breathe and think in peace. You've no idea how good it is. It's like having a pain relieved—not by dope but by a permanent cure." She gave a little happy laugh. "Why don't you hang out a shingle? 'Dr. Alexander mends lives—not bones.' Or am I embarrassing you? I may not be embarrassing you, darling, but I am certainly talking you to death."

"Talk some more . . ."

She laughed again. "He likes my chatter! But seriously I didn't think I had anything to talk about. And now, between phone calls and people telling me how wonderful I am because I'm giving Patrick Burke's art treasures to the public, that I'm a chip off the old block, that I have a pure and unselfish soul, I want to talk about what I'm going to do when I leave here.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, September 15.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of moderate success in whatever may be undertaken. But the spiritual, mystical and emotional affairs are under good auspices. There may be incentive to write poetry, music and other forms of creative expression.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a moderately successful year in commonplace forms, although it might be well to practice composition in drama, music, art and love as well.

A child born on this day will be spiritually endowed, with creative talent in poetry, music, drama and finer expression in art, possibly with modernistic trends.

For Monday, September 16.

Monday's Astrological Forecast shows great activity, largely in the creation of new and unusual forms, possibly in scientific invention as also in adventure, travel and romance. Emotional experience is to the fore, with much happiness, although probably opposed by superiors or elders. Show reckless and impulsive moves and quarrels.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a happy rather than a prosperous year, although things will be rather active, especially in invention, science, aeronautics and as well in adventure and travel.

A child born on this day will be clever, original, friendly and cultured. It may lean toward mysticism.

thereupon became a part of the bill provided, in principle, that once the president had placed a defense order, the manufacturer should accept it at a price declared to be "reasonable" by the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy.

If the manufacturer declined to give the government preference on this order, or refused to fill it, the government could step in and operate the plant, paying 'fair and just" compensation. The manufacturer would be subject to maximum penalties of three years imprisonment and $50,000 fine.

This provision contrasted with the committee's compromise version which opponents assailed as "vague" and "unenforceable." That would have authorized the government to take over plants only if the secretary of war or the secretary of navy certified that the public necessity was immediate and there was no other source of supply.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.), co-author with Senator Overton (D., La.) of the original senate section discarded by the conferees, led the fight which resulted in the senate vote.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, Senator Burke (D., Neb.), a co-author of the bill, and Overton all argued that the conference amendment was better than either that had gone before it, and threatened, in fact more drastic curbs on what they called "chiselers" in industry.

Barkley combined a defense of the provision with a plea for speed in acceptance of the compromise bill.

FOUR INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY AT ASHLAND

ASHLAND — A county grand jury of nine women and six men returned four indictments, one of them secret, at the conclusion of their one day's session Friday, the first one of the September term of the court.

The jurors returned indictments against Robert Pewonski and Charles Albert Miller, local youths arrested in August for their alleged part in the breaking and entering of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company on July 30.

Bound over to the jury by a justice of the peace here, the youths have been held in the county jail since early August charged with to commit larceny.

Pewonski has been held in lieu of $2,500 bond and Miller in lieu of $2,000 bond—the bond was set high, as it was alleged by city police at the time that the youths were implicated in other breakings and enterings in the city.

The other true open bill was returned against Edward James Hartman, charged with issuing a forged check for $10 on July 23. He is being held in the county jail in lieu of bond.

The jurors inspected the county jail at the end of their session, and found "no provision of law for regulations of county jails has been violated.

They were in session one day, covered five cases, investigated nine witnesses and refused to indict L. R. Cole.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T WASTE YOURS

If you get along in the play of a hand to the point where one of the defenders holds the commanding trump, you naturally hope usually to keep him out of the lead, so he can't lay it down and make you play two trumps on it. You would prefer not to waste any of your own in making him use it, but would rather compel him to squander it on a trick which would be lost by you anyway, even if he didn't have the big trump. Once in a coon's age you get a chance to make something like that come about, if you are alert and far seeing.

When West led the diamond Q and the dummy went down, the situation looked full of possibilities, but as it developed, they would not have been realized except by a complete watchability to look ahead. That is exactly what was on the job Lee Hazen, brilliant New York attorney who is rapidly gaining a reputation as being one of the keenest card-players in the nation. Probing the weaknesses he took the diamond Q with the K and laid down the club K planning a possible ruffing of the suit. Next he cashed

As the 7 fell from West on this trick, he decided to protect himself against any undue ruffing, so cashed the spade K and A, leaving the Q out. His guess of the club suit proved right, then, when he led the Q. West discarding. So he ruffed the club 3, put the club 8 on the heart A, ruffed a heart, cashed the diamond A, ruffed the diamond 2 with the spade 6, then led a heart. Since East, with the spade Q, had to play before him, Mr. Hazen, with a trump left, was assured one of the last two tricks and his contract. It was nice timing.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

It took all the will-power I possessed to keep myself from whirling and darting out of the room where Edith Fairfax lay.

From somewhere I got the strength to compel my body to stay where it was. With the knowledge that there was no triangle in my life as far as Edith was concerned, that she had failed utterly in her attempts to lure Dicky away from me, and that she was a pitifully beaten and defeated, probably dying woman, I also forced my voice to the crisp imperative speech which I knew was the only possible appeal to the weak tremulous woman before me.

"Stop this nonsense at once, Ede," I said. "As I told you just now, Dicky is not refusing to see you, nor am I keeping him from you. Instead I shall do everything I can to further his meeting with you, and I am sure he will see you as soon as it is possible for him to do so."

She lay quiet for a few seconds, evidently turning over in her mind the assurance I had given her. When at last she spoke it was with lips that quivered pitifully.

"Then, if he comes, it will be because you make him do it. He doesn't want to see me, even if he hasn't actually refused to come here. It is my punishment! I can't blame him, but oh! Madge!"—her voice rose to a despairing wail again, "I can't die without seeing him!"

She threw her hands over her eyes, while her body shook, not with sobs, but convulsive shudders far more terrifying.

I sent an appealing glance at Miss Whitlock, for I felt that I had exhausted every possible attempt to reach Edith's warped judgment, and the nurse moved swiftly but unobtrusively to my side.

"You mustn't exhaust yourself, Miss Fairfax," she said with cool authority, "or you can see nobody."

"Listen quietly now to what Mrs. Graham has to say, or I shall have to ask her to leave the room."

"I'll be quiet," she whispered, and her voice was docile, while the flaming look of madness had faded from her eyes, leaving them only sorrowful and bewildered. "Please go on, Madge."

"It's only this, Ede," I said, trying to make my voice casual and matter-of-fact. "Father has ordered all the windows in the house barred before tonight."

Her eyes flew to mine and held them.

"Why?" she whispered tensely.

"Because," I said, wondering if what I had to tell her would frighten her unduly, yet knowing no other way of explaining Dicky's continued absence to her, "because he is preparing for what Jack Leslie may be planning."

"Jack Leslie!" she whispered. "But—he isn't due for a week yet."

Mansfield Tygers Eke Out 14-13 Victory Over Akron

Allen Faces Boston

Trosky Returns to Lineup In Last Game; Indians Win 1 to 0.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Three important victories in a row kept the Cleveland Indians only a tiger whisker behind Detroit as they attempted to sweep the series with the hapless Boston Red Sox.

Johnny Allen, long-jawed right hander who was virtually unbeatable before he injured his throwing arm a couple of seasons ago, was the Cleveland pitching choice against Earl Johnson, Boston southpaw.

The Indians, with slugger Hal Trosky ready to return to first base, asked only that Allen hurl half as well as Mel Harder and Al Milnar in the first two games of the series.

These two hurlers turned in three-hitters to keep the Indians only a half-game behind the Tigers.

The Indians connected for only two singles yesterday off Jim Bagby, jr., but they were timed for the closest of all wins, 1 to 0.

Roy Weatherly, teaming with Jeff Heath for some remarkable outfield sprints to kill several potential Boston hits, led off the Indians' half of the fourth inning with a hit through shortstop, advanced to third as Heath smacked one to right field, and came home when Lou Boudreau grounded into a twin killing. That represented Milnar's 16th success of the campaign, although his first since Aug. 11.

Oscar Vitt, Tribe manager for nobody knows how long, said Trosky's injured leg had mended enough to make his return possible.

* * *

The pilot planned to keep the Indians' leading slugger idle another day or two, however, in order to take no chance of a recurrence which would end Trosky's services for the fast-closing season.

Reserves Drop 25-0 Decision

Unlike the Mansfield Tygers who won their first game of the season last night, the Mansfield Junior Varsity suffered a 25 to 0 whipping at the hands of the New London high school Wildcats in a game played at New London yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the season for both teams.

Bedell and Lehnert each scored one of New London's tallies, and D. Wolfe scored the other two. Most of the game was played in Mansfield territory and featured long runs and passes by New London. The Reserves are coached by Athletic Director Harry Mehock.

Findlay Oilers Tackle Lima Club

LIMA —(AP)— Findlay's Oilers finished second to the Lima Pandas in the Ohio State league's regular season but they'll get another crack at the champs in the Shaughnessy playoff finals starting here tomorrow.

The Oilers edged Tiffin 8 to 7 last night for their third victory in four starts against the loop's fourth players in the playoff preliminaries. Tiffin got 11 hits to 11 for Findlay but committed three errors.

Lima entered the finals on the crest of three straight triumphs over Mansfield's Braves, which finished the regular season in third place. The finals test is a four-out-of-seven game affair.

Action Shots as Mansfield, Bellville Teams Triumph

Bill Doolittle is shown snagging Martin Henke's pass on the Akron 39-yard line midway in the third period of the Mansfield Tyger-Akron West game at Stadium field last night. It was the only pass completed by Mansfield. No. 14, Patton, of Akron, brought Doolittle down after he made a six-yard gain. The Tygers edged Akron, 14 to 13.

Keiser, Bellville high fullback, who scored the Bluejays' lone touchdown in his club's 7-6 win over LaRue at Bellville yesterday, is shown above as he picks up yardage on the touchdown drive in the first period. Paul Palm, Bellville quarterback, is shown at the left. Price, LaRue tackle, is No. 87.

Tyger Highlights

By BOB FLOHR

NUMEROUS improvements at Stadium field in addition to the new lighting plant were noticed by the some 3,000 grid fans who turned out last night to see the Mansfield Tygers play their first home contest under the flood lights.

During the summer vacation workmen repainted the west side stands, the ticket booths on both sides of the field, portions of the fence encircling the field as well as the press box in the west stands.

With all seats reserved this year for home games, school officials also had all seats in both stands numbered.

* * *

Mansfield Boy Scouts, instead of faculty members and students, acted as ushers. All scouts who worked were attired in their regulation uniforms and handled the seating of patrons like veterans.

* * *

For the first time in a number of years the Senior high school band did not present one of its colorful marching formations during the half period. Due to the large crowd, band members had to relinquish their seats in the west stands, and instead were seated near the north goal posts.

* * *

Probably one of the busiest persons before game time was Neil Ruhl who was seen rushing all over the field getting his sound apparatus in location for the dedication ceremonies. His equipment was also used throughout the game for announcements and description of plays.

* * *

Next to the team, Principal Jesse Beer received the largest hand during the evening when he made his short talk during the dedication ceremonies. Students in the rooting section began to applaud even before he was on the stand in front of the west stands.

* * *

Another busy person during the evening, especially before the game got under way, was Floyd Dent, area Boy Scout executive. Dent was in charge of the scout ushers and was kept busy running around helping the boys out and giving instructions.

* * *

Two other new features at Stadium field were noticeable to the first night crowd. One was the telephone communication from the playing field to the scoreboard at the south end of the field, and the other was the large cardboard field yardage markers. They are painted black on silver.

* * *

Mansfield's ministers and physicians were well represented among the professional persons who were at the game. At least eight doctors and two ministers were seen in the crowd.

* * *

Those who saw the game from the press box had a little excitement of their own throughout the evening. A wasps' nest was discovered near the roof of the box and those in the box had to kill at least four of the winged pests before they could get down to work.

* * *

Girls from Mansfield's two Junior high schools served as vendors at the game with hot dogs and chocolate drinks as their biggest sellers.

* * *

Mansfield's Downtown Coaches association was also well represented at the game, their delegation headed by Joseph G. Blahnik, club president. A number of teachers and principals from Mansfield public schools were also on hand for the opening contest.

Shelby Trips Norwalk Club

Whippets Turn Back Rivals, 12-6 Under Lights.

NORWALK — Scoring in the first periods, Shelby high school's Whippets opened their 1940 grid campaign here under the lights at Norwalk field by handing the Norwalk high eleven a 12-6 beating.

* * *

The Whippets' first scoring opportunity came in the first period at a time when Norwalk was staging a drive down the field, and was made on an 80-yard run.

Daugherty, Shelby quarterback, made the spectacular run, intercepting a long Norwalk pass on the 20-yard line, racing 80 yards through the Norwalk team for the Whippets first score. Daugherty's kick for extra point was no good.

Shelby's second score came in the final quarter after Hazelwood blocked a Norwalk punt on Norwalk's 21. After a series of power plays which took the ball to the Norwalk 5, Laubie carried the ball over. Hazelwood failed to make the extra point.

A drive which started on the Norwalk 45-yard stripe ended in Norwalk's only touchdown and came in the second period to tie the score. Martin ran over with the ball after receiving a pass from Stevenson.

Shelby registered six first downs against Norwalk's two.

Three other North Central Ohio league teams saw action under the lights last night as they launched their 1940 campaign, two of them losing. Bucyrus defeated Tiffin Columbian 19 to 0 in a game at Bucyrus.

Not faring so well in their opening contests were Ashland and Galion. Ashland suffered a 6-0 loss at the hands of Willard high in a game played at Ashland, and Tiffin Calvert trounced the Galion high Orangemen 39 to 7 in a night contest at Galion.

Ontario, Liberty Play Baseball Games Sunday

Marysville will meet Ontario Sunday afternoon in a postponed North Central Ohio baseball game at Ontario, it was announced today. Pat Patterson is scheduled to work on the mound for the Ontario nine. The game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. The Liberty park nine will trek to Shiloh Sunday afternoon to tackle the Shiloh Lions in another baseball game scheduled for this area on Sunday.

Crestline Defeats Mt. Gilead Team

CRESTLINE — Paced by Light and Maleno, Crestline high school's fast-stepping grid machine scored a 12-0 win over Mt. Gilead high school under the lights here last night to cop their tenth straight victory.

Maleno scored the Onondagas' first touchdown early in the second quarter, and in the last period Light plunged over for Crestline's second score after Light and Maleno drove the ball from the 35 to 5 yard stripe. A crowd of 1,300 witnessed the opening contest. Crestline meets Galion at Galion Sept. 20. It was Crestline's ninth straight win.

Tiffin Swamps Galion Team

Calvert Hands Orangemen 27 to 7 Beating.

GALION — Tiffin Calvert and Galion high school football teams opened their seasons Friday night upnder the lights at Heise park, here, the visitors smearing the Orangemen, 39 to 7. After nine minutes of the kickoff, Kenneth Seislove sped 28 yards to score for Calvert. Derose followed with a seven yard sweep to open the second quarter with a score, and Seislove made it 18 to 0 shortly after a 22-yard sprint.

* * *

Lee's 12-yard run and another 29-yard end run by Derose brought Calvert touchdowns in the third period. Galion took advantage of a 15-yard penalty to send DeWalt across from the one foot line early in the final period but a 20-yard lateral to Don Seislove gave Calvert a final touchdown in the late minutes.

* * *

Most of the game was played in Galion territory. Calvert had a well trained, fast, team, while Galion's playing was ragged. Calvert had 12 first downs to Galion's five. End runs and wide laterals were used by the visitors.

Tigers Hand Yanks 2nd Straight Defeat

By BILL WHITE

FOR a team of "nine old men" that seemed destined to suffer from the altitude if it got higher than fifth place in the American league, the Detroit Tigers seem surprisingly spry.

Tagged last spring as an outfit that definitely had looked upon better days, the Tigers today are the hottest—if not the best—team in the American league.

Twice they have stopped the New York Yankees, the last time yesterday by a humiliating 8-0 shutout as little Tommy Bridges curve-balled the Yanks into helplessness. That was the Tigers' eighth victory in the last nine times out and the fifth straight win over their two toughest foes, the Indians and the Yankees.

Bridges was touched for three solid blows in the first two innings, but after that the Yankees didn't get a man past first base. The Tigers pounded out 16 hits, including Hank Greenberg's 33rd homer, to hand Marius Russo his first defeat in his last eight starts.

The second place Cleveland Indians stayed close to the Tigers by beating Boston, 1 to 0.

The Chicago White Sox crept into fourth place with a pair of victories over the Athletics, 6-2 and 8-4. The Sox relied on steady pitching by Thornton Lee and Jack Hallett, a righthander making his major league debut.

Bill Trotter of the Browns went the distance for the first time this season and snuffed out the Washington Senators by 7-3.

When the National league firing was over the Cincinnati Reds were still 8½ games ahead of the Dodgers. The Reds whipped Carl Hubbell and the Giants 5-2.

The Dodgers kept in second place by busting the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-2 as Rookie Ed Head won his first major league victory by scattering seven hits.

Kirby Higbe pitched the Phils to a 6-1 victory over the Cubs for his 13th victory of the season. Working well behind Lon Warneke, the Cardinals hammered the Boston Bees for 11 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Madison Rams Meet Wooster Club Tonight

Although most high school football aggregations in this section of the state opened their 1940 grid campaign yesterday, the Madison high school Rams will not open their fall campaign until tonight when they tackle the Wooster high school Generals under the lights at Wooster at 8 p. m.

The contest, the first for the two schools, will be an attraction of the Wayne county fair now being held at Wooster. The game will be played at Maurer Field.

In facing Wooster, Madison, a Class B team will meet a veteran Class A aggregation which is expected to offer the Rams plenty of trouble before the evening is over.

Massillon, Canton Annex Opening Games

Two of the Mansfield Tygers' future grid opponents, Massillon and Canton McKinley, opened their 1940 grid campaign last night by defeating two Cleveland schools in spectacular fashion. Showing the kind of football that has kept them at the top of the Ohio scholastic football list, the Massillon Tigers downed Cleveland Cathedral Latin, 64 to 0, before 16,500 fans at Massillon, and Canton's powerful gridders trounced Cleveland Lincoln, 57 to 0, before 10,000 fans at Fawcett Stadium in Canton.

MILLERSBURG - Pushing across three touchdowns in the second period, the Millersburg high school Spartons chalked up a 20-0 victory over Danville in the season's inaugural at Danville yesterday afternoon.

Bellville Edges LaRue In Opening Football Contest

BELLVILLE Bellville high's Bluejays opened their 1940 grid season with a thrilling 7 to 6 triumph over LaRue before some 300 spectators here yesterday afternoon.

The Bluejays, playing their first game under Coach L. C. Lindsay, hopped into the lead in the first period and never trailed.

With Keiser pacing the attack, the Bluejays staged a 40-yard touchdown march which was climaxed when Keiser drove 10 yards through right tackle into pay dirt. He also added the extra point which proved to be the winning margin.

* * *

After LaRue scored in the second quarter when Duncan broke through center from the five to cross the goal line neither club threatened seriously. Duncan attempted to add the extra point on a plunge, but was stopped cold.

Bellville marked up four first downs while LaRue was collecting three.

Jones Gallops 82 Yards for First Marker

Doolittle Adds Second Touchdown as Cowboys Put Up Desperate Battle.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH'S 1940 football machine made its debut at Stadium field under the floodlights last night in anything but an impressive fashion.

A crowd of 3,200 spectators looked on as the Tygers managed to turn back a veteran Akron West combine, 14 to 13, in a game marred by poor blocking.

The contest as a whole was dull but the fans got a couple of thrills in the second period on two spectacular touchdown gallops, one by George Sarkis of Akron and the other by Elroy "Lightning" Jones of Mansfield.

Mansfield, although its lineup was filled with inexperienced men, built up a lead in the third period, but nearly lost it when Akron West tried desperately to overtake the Tygers in the fading minutes of the final period.

* * *

Coach Paul Snyder's club held a 14 to 6 advantage as play started in the fourth chapter and the team appeared to lose its punch and the Cowboys took complete command of the situation.

Paul Dietzel, Mansfield center, ended the final Akron threat in the closing seconds when he intercepted an Akron aerial on the Mansfield 25.

Dave Kelker, Akron lineman, attempted to put his club into the lead late in the fourth chapter when he attempted a field goal from the Mansfield 35-yard line. The kick, however, was short and wide of its mark.

Akron scored its touchdowns in the second and fourth periods, while the Tygers punched over into pay dirt once in the second and again in the third chapter.

Sarkis, Akron quarterback, started the ball rolling early in the second chapter when he returned a punt 81 yards through the entire Mansfield team. Kelker tried to kick the extra point but Ed Kinkle, Mansfield guard, broke through and blocked the attempt.

Hardly had the fans settled back into their seats when Elroy "Lightning" Jones brought them to their feet with a spectacular 82-yard dash on the next kickoff.

Akron kicked off to Martin Henke, who handed the ball to Bill Doolittle and he in turn tossed the pigskin to Jones who sprinted between seven Akron players and didn't stop until he was in the end zone.

Snyder immediately sent Adam Brandt into the game to add the point from placement and put Mansfield ahead, 7 to 6.

That ended the scoring until late in the third stanza when Doolittle sprinted through right tackle from the Akron 31 to score standing up. Brandt again added the point from placement and it looked like the Tygers were on their way.

But from here on in the Tyger attack bogged down and Akron took charge. In the final chapter Akron marked up five first downs to Mansfield's one. Akron started its last touchdown march from its own 38.

Four first downs placed the pigskin on the Mansfield seven-yard line and Bob Flint, substitute halfback, broke through the line for the Cowboys' second marker. Kelker added the point from placement.

The Tygers couldn't break their backs loose against the hard-charging Akron line and several times the interference was piled up before it reached the line of scrimmage. The blocking looked spotty most of the time and left side of the Mansfield line appeared weak on defense. Don Combs, Akron back, kept picking up important yardage through that side of the line practically every time he carried the ball.

Akron marked up eight first downs to Mansfield's three, and held the advantage in nearly every department.

The Mansfield team was unable to pick up yardage through the line and their passing attack was not impressive. With the schedule looming tougher and tougher each week, Snyder will send his proteges through stiff drills again this week in preparation for the Cambridge game at the Stadium field Friday night.

* * *

As a whole the Mansfield backfield looked good. The backs were slow in forming interference, but once they got under way they cracked into the Akron line with plenty of force.

Doolittle Jones, Henke, Kinkle and Jim Templeton were standouts for the Tygers, while Combs, Sarkis, Flint and Rudy Crews led the Cowboy attack.

A whale, unlike most fish, breathes with lungs as we do. But a whale under water, can hold its breath for as long as 45 minutes.

A Waterville, Main newspaper printed the following in their fish and game column: "A mouse slipped on the ice at Norridgewock the other day, receiving injuries so serious that it was necessary for wardens to execute the animal." But it was just a case of a proofreader who slipped up on the word "moose."

Men who get a big kick out of fishing or hunting, will get even greater enjoyment by taking along some boy. He'll have lots of fun and so will you, and you can teach him valuable lessons of good sportsmanship and conservation . . . for upon the shoulders of the little lads, rests the entire future of our wildlife.

The Ithaca "Featherlight" pump gun is one of a famous family made by Ithaca Gun Co., that enables a hunter to travel farther, finish fresher and get into action quicker, because of its fine balance and light weight. Just one of the many dependable guns you can buy at Yuncker's, on a convenient budget plan.

The State Division of Conservation reports the best bass fishing in many weeks. Record catches being noted in the Put-In-Bay reef area of Lake Erie as well as unusually good takes in most inland lakes and streams.

The new fresh stocks of those famous Western Shells are ready at Yuncker's, in Super-X and Xpert grades, and in all gauges, loads and shot sizes. Every year more and more hunters turn to Western Shells . . . try them and you'll know the reason.

After wearing your boots or waders wash them with some pure soap, then prepare a solution of three parts glycerine to one part alcohol, and rub it on your footgear with a small sponge. Then stuff crumpled newspapers in the boots to fill them out and removes any wrinkles, and hang them up by the straps. This keeps your rubber footwear in excellent condition and makes them last a lot longer.

STOCKS SHOW MIXED TRENDS IN MART TODAY

Westinghouse Among List Having Slight Gains; Many Issues Remain Unchanged.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Leading stock issues showed narrowly mixed trends at the opening of the market today.

With many traded shares unchanged from yesterday's close, the fractional gainers included Pennsylvania railroad, Westinghouse, Curtiss-Wright "A," and American Can while losers included Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Eastman, U. S. Steel and Sears Roebuck.

Wall Street commentators suggested increased activity was likely among aircraft, building, retail and rail shares because of the rapidly widening defense program.

From trade and government sources came indications rearmament production would not interfere with automobile output.

Marketmen were concerned with the senate's delay in work on the excess profits tax bill, pointing out that the probable level of earnings on stocks cannot be accurately judged until the bill is settled.

OLD OIL HIDES RUBENS PICTURE

X-Ray Photographs Reveal Master's Art Covered Up By Amateur.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(U.P.)—X-ray photographs have revealed that under an exterior coat of paint on a relatively obscure painting in the Walker art collection here, there is hidden a priceless original by Peter Paul Rubens.

The art gallery is considering a six-months' paint removing job to reveal the original painting. Layers of paint would have to be taken off with slow working solvents so that the under layers would not be damaged.

"Slow and costly as this might be, it would be of little consideration if the results are as good as the X-rays indicate they might be," J. LeRoy Davidson, assistant director of the Walker-WPA Art Center, explained.

He said the less-skillful hand of some artist apparently had overpainted the 17th century Flemish artist's original in an attempt to "sweeten" the painting. The X-ray pictures of the painting, which depicts the Madonna, Child and St. John, reveal the robust, living characters of Rubens. The overpainter had made them traditionally cherubic and smooth in appearance.

Art experts believe the Madonna was drawn with Rubens' second wife as a model. This would date the painting as one of his more advanced pieces of work, done perhaps between 1610 and 1620.

responsible for the installation of the lights.

"Mansfield and the Senior high school owe these public-spirited citizens a debt of gratitude," Superintendent Miller said.

In answer to his speech, Mayor W. J. Locke spoke for the citizens of Mansfield, saying "Mansfield has always been proud of its schools and no sacrifice on the part of the citizens in behalf of the schools can be too great."

Formal presentation of the lighting system to the board of education was made by Jesse Beer, principal of the Senior high school, who also praised Mansfielders who took an active part in the project.

Dr. John S. Hattery, school board member, accepted presentation of the lighting system on behalf of the board of education. He acted in the absence of H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education, who is recovering from an operation in a Columbus hospital.

Dr. Hattery said: "Of course the board is proud to accept this lighting system and we sincerely thank those who so willing gave their time to its erection."

He paid tribute to Arlin's untiring efforts in helping organize and promote the installation of the lights. It was chiefly through Arlin that the erection of the lights became a reality, Hattery said.

Following the speeches, the Legion Drum corps marched down the center of the field to the flag pole at the south end of the field, where a flag-raising ceremony was staged.

After the ceremony the crowd rose and sang "God Bless America" with the Senior high school band playing the accompanying music, and the dedication was ended.
